Entry Description

Iguchi Funabori is a renal urology clinic. The design was brought with an idea of combining dimensional planes with various geometric expressions to make an art feeling space. Takuji Kamio applied several geometric patterns to the floor, walls, and ceiling with the emphasizing lighting system. He applied several types of tiles in different directions and tried to create some kind of the design movements to the space. He focused on making the space more art and fun rather than just a normal hospital lounge. The combination of the geometric planes was one of his answers.
